MISCELLANEOUS READING. BLANK VERSE IN THE PULPIT.

The last thing we should have fancied, is to have heard within the pulpit, echoes of the form and fashion of Longfellow's "Hiawathe" In the fore part of the season, down at (then not crowded) Ram-gate, an acute dissenting preacher, to attract a numerous FOR LADIES - Rich Cashmeres and De Laines; gathering, advertised his fixed intention, twice (D. V.) on the next Sunday, sermons ry had they, listening to the man who did it; man obese, obese his wit too. To describe we will not venture, how the pump went onward working; at each lifting of the bandledribbling forth its stinted measure. Very painful 'twas to hear it; very pleasant to the speaker. "Love" was the all-graceful subject; quite unlovely was the treatment. But twas with a moral pointed, moral pointed very sharply; sharply pointed to the pocket; and it showed how if our bosoms glowed but with the love he painted, we should prove it by a lib'ral coming-down at the collection .- London

NO ROMANCE.

Athenceum

A man who had been West, and been chased by an Indian, makes the following matterof-fact observations: "Much has been said by poets and romantic young ladies about the picturesque aspect and the noble form of an untamed, untamable warrior of the prairie, and far be it from me to gainsay them. An Indian is a noble spectacle-in a picture, or at a safe distance - but when this noble spectacle is moving his moccasins in your direction and you have to do some tall walking in order to keep the capillary substance on the summit of your cranium, all his 'nobility' vanishes, and you see in him only a painted greasy miscreant, who will if you give him a chance, lift your hair with the same Christian sprit, composed and most screne, with which he would ask another 'spectacle' for a little more of that 'baked dog.' I used to think like the poets; now the eight of an Indian gives me a cramp in the stomach."
